REPORT FOR 1895.

THE Directors of the Boston Training School for Nurses desire to present herewith to their friends and subscribers their Twenty-second Annual Report, which will also be their final one, as the Trustees of the Massachusetts General Hospital have decided to take over the Training School, so as to have everything under one head.

The usual work of the year has been carried on in a satisfactory manner by lectures, teaching by the Superintendent of Nurses, ward training, and lessons in massage and cooking, and quarterly examinations by the Physicians.

Thirty-four nurses have been accepted out of 840 applications during the year. 33 nurses have been graduated, and there is now a large waiting list. The staff of Doctors has, as before, given weekly lectures to the nurses with great gain; and in all ways the year closes with satisfactory results.

Under the circumstances of the change of management it may be of interest very briefly to review the establishment and work of this Training School, which was one of the first three started in this country. In the year 1873 some ladies, feeling strongly the defects in the standard of nursing in this city, united themselves with some physicians, and asked of the Trustees of the Massachusetts General Hospital that they might be allowed an opportunity in the Hospital to train nurses. A ward of the Hospital was given into their charge, good women were selected to do the nursing, and the results so satisfied the Trustees and Doctors in charge that another ward was shortly given to their care; and in July of 1873 the Boston Training School became a corporate body, and gradually received from the Trustees the charge of the entire nursing of the Hospital. The ladies and gentlemen forming the original committee soon enlarged their board to the present number of twenty. They have had under their oversight and control in the Hospital a growing body of nurses, until the present number of 72 nurses, with Superintendent and Night Superintendent, was reached; and they have gradually brought about, with the assistance of the Doctors, the existing system of teaching and training, by instruction, lectures, and the practical and varied work of a large hospital. In these twenty-two years there have been graduated 398 nurses, of whom 58 have become superintendents or assistant superintendents of hospitals, 186 have become private nurses, and the remainder died or returned to private life or other occupations.

The Training School in its growth has been largely indebted to the help, advice, and support of the Physicians of the staff and the cordial and helpful co-operation of the Resident Physician.

The money to carry on this work of training has been given by generous friends and yearly subscribers; and we are able to turn over the funds to the Hospital in excellent shape, thanks to the capital care given for many years by our Treasurer.

The Managers of the Training School close this twenty-second and final year of their work with the hope and belief that the Training School for Nurses will go on yearly to higher and better work, and ever maintain the best standard of nursing in this community.
